EMPORDÀLIA SINOLS ROSAT 2010

Your mother-in-law will both declare it her new favorite wine and give you that look for not spending more.

conceptual doppelgänger

The unfamiliar-to-most chirimoya fruit is one of those wonderful delights of nature that simply hasn't captured the collective mind of the American fruit eater – a rare person to begin with. It has a creamy texture and can only be described in terms of other fruits: pineapple, mango and banana are commonly cited. It just shows that the earth imbues fruit with its flavor. Sinols Blanco captures a lot of that name-that-fruit tonality coupled with a creamy mouth feel: a unique and approachable white.

Producer	Empordàlia is a Cooperative project with a long history of producing quality terroir driven wines. Founded in 1961, they are based in the picturesque Empordà DO region in the northeastern corner of Catalonia, Spain. This union represents a collaboration of three wineries, three villages and a diverse landscape. Their primary goal is to conserve the defining features of the small Empordà region by using indigenous grapes and traditional methods, while at the same time utilizing the latest technology to enhance quality. The area borders the Pyrenees Mountains to the north, the Mediterranean to the east, and the wines show similarities to the neighboring French regions of Banyuls and the Cotes de Rousillon. Empordàlia is an exciting addition to our portfolio with wines that truly reflect the land of the Empordà region.

Viti/Vini Sustainable. Low yields. Hand harvested and sorted. The grapes are destalked and cold-macerated for at least 48 hours. Alcoholic fermentation for approximately 21 days, below 16 °C, in stainless steel tanks.
