OTTO'S CONSTANT DREAM

PINOT NOIR

The light body belies the complexity of a '08 Pinot's coming out party in 2011, escorted by Major Pepperpot and Lieutenant Leather.

conceptual doppelgänger

While no one I know wants to drink a cigar, Pinot Noir is probably one of the closest relatives in terms of nuanced flavor. A good cigar, when savored, can display a rich panoply of exotic and dyschordant flavors. OCD Pinot shows a lot of interesting leather, spice, pepper, and smoke and should be enjoyed by those who like to savor things.

| Producer | OCD is the wine that launched Communal Brands. Inspired by Melissa Saunders' obsessive nature about wine, her friend and future business partner, Chris Antista, created a wine in her honor: OCD. She applied said obsessive nature to find the right juice for our eponymous brand, ultimately finding a warm connection in her husband's native New Zealand. There, her wine-making counterpart, Fiona Turner, had the same passion for wine and was a proven pot stirrer capable of making the wine OCD needed to be. Add to this mix aforementioned husband and a cadre of fellow New Yorkers with a penchant for wine and games, and Otto's Constant Dream was born. The name? You'll have to ask the authorities about that ;-). |
| Viti/Vini | Sustainable. De-stemmed, crushed. Fruit to settle and cold soak in open top fermenters. Hand plunged twice daily. Once color is stabilized, inoculated with both wild and commercial yeasts. Primary fermentation in stainless steel vats for 5-7 days at about 32 degrees Celsius. Racked off skins into stainless vats and oak barrels (10% new) for MLF and maturation, which lasts 8-10 months, prior to bottling. |
