CONCEPTUAL DOPPELGÄNGER

Flula Borg the German Youtube star slash film actor, musician, comedian. At first glance he seems clownish and nothing more than a goof. But upon further scrutiny you learn he is a genius in disguise. His disregard for convention and lack of ego are a breath of fresh air. He simultaneously lampoons and celebrates German culture, all the while revealing his mastery of many musical instruments and genres. Like this bottle, on the surface it may seem playful and fun, but peel away the layers and there is some serious wine with legit pedigree in there.

VITI/VINI

The 18 hectare estate is practicing organic. The grapes are entirely picked by hand. During harvest there is a very careful selection made in the vineyard, requiring as many as three passes through the vines to only get perfect ripe grapes. The high quality fruit is then gently pressed and allowed to ferment naturally in stainless steel tanks. The wine is then rested for up to 6 months on the fine lees adding to the beautiful texture. The result is a dry, fresh Riesling perfect for quaffing.

PRODUCER

For Communal Brands' first foray into Germany we have chosen the perfect partners. Peter & Michael Ebert are the two young brothers at the helm of Weingut Edelberg. This estate in Weiler a small village in Germany's Nahe region, is a direct reflection of the brothers' commitment to quality. They practice organic farming, living by the motto "as much as necessary, as little as possible." using no herbicides or fungicides and only treating the vines when absolutely required to. This ethos extends into the winery as well, with minimal intervention in the winemaking process. The brothers seek to express their terroir through the interplay of "the soil, the vine, nature, and of course us!" Working with your sibling isn't easy, it has to be a true partnership. This is part of what drew us to choose them as our partners... their damned good wines helped as well! We are thrilled to welcome Edelberg into our family of producers.
